Township Tax Rate Reduction Is Foreseen

One Mill Cut Possible Due to Curtailed Highway Expense, Says Sykes.

APPROVED BY MANCILL

A reduction in the township tax rate will be voted by the Lower Merion Commissioners when they fix the tax rate for 1932, it was indicated at the reorganization meeting of the commissioners Monday night.

The reduction will undoubtedly constitute a ten per cent. or one mill reduction in the present rate. This will be made possible, according to Frank H. Sykes, retiring president of the board, by curtailed expenditures in the highway department.

Suggested by Mr. Sykes, the prospects for a reduction were also approved by the incoming president, Frank H. Mancill. Following his election Mr. Mancill said: "I see no reason why a further reduction of taxes could not be made and I am sure all members of this board will do everything possible to bring it about."

The present township tax rate is ten mills. A reduction to nine mills would give Lower Merion the lowest township tax rate in the State based on its assessed valuation.

An increased assessed valuation of more than one million dollars estimated for 1932 as compared to 1931 will also bring the township increased tax collections of approximately $10,000. If this amount is subtracted from the approximate $87,000 reduction of township income that will result from a ten per cent. cut of the township rate then the estimated budget slash for 1932 will approximate $77,000.

The present combined township, school and county tax rate is 25 mills. County Commissioners fix their tax rate in February and the Lower Merion School Board will fix their rate at the April meeting.

In referring to a tax rate reduction Mr. Sykes stated in his farewell report: "Contrary to the general trend elsewhere, the cost of government in Lower Merion township has been in descending scale. Our highways are now in good condition, and a much smaller appropriation of township funds should serve every reasonable need of that department in 1932. This being the case, and as the other departments can get along on approximately the same budgets as in 1931, there does not appear any bar to a further reduction of 10 per cent. in the tax rate for 1932."

In commenting on the contemplated tax reduction, Township Treasurer Peter C. Hess said: "The policy of Lower Merion Township in the past, present and future is simply to collect sufficient taxes to run the government properly, and no more, furnishing adequate public works and public safety. The fact that we are on a pay-as-you-go policy makes this possible."

"The incoming Board of Commissioners are the ones to make this decision and the matter can well be left in their hands."

Enlarged Safe Deposit Facilities Are Installed at the Narberth National Bank

The Narberth National Bank this week announced a substantial enlargement of its safe deposit facilities. A nest of more than 400 new boxes was purchased to give space to the many residents who have applied for facilities. The new boxes are of the York Safe and Lock Company's latest approved design.

The Narberth institution, which was founded in 1925, is the only National Bank east of Bryn Mawr. Its vault, in which the new boxes have been installed, is of the most modern construction. The Mosler door is equipped with a time lock, protecting a vault with 18-inch steel and concrete walls. The walls, top and bottom are reinforced with 1-inch rods interlaced at 4-inch intervals, and fully wired throughout the construction for the electric burglar alarm. The vault is lined on all sides with half-inch steel sheeting.

Located on the main floor of the bank, the safe deposit facilities are readily accessible to the public. More than 650 boxes are now installed, in three sizes, and the bank has announced that it is prepared to extend the facilities again if the need arises.

The room at the school having the greatest number of parents as members of the association will be awarded a picture to be presented at a later date.

The teachers have informed the pupils of this contest and it is hoped that many parents will join and become interested in the splendid work the Parent-Teachers' Association is doing.

A Change of Size

In 1927 The Main Liner adopted experimentally a magazine-sized page, new to the Philadelphia suburbs. Two years later Our Town and the News of Bala-Cynwyd were made uniform with the Ardmore paper. During this period the features of this unique form were carefully studied.

The publishers have been more than pleased with the possibilities of the magazine form. This week the standard six-column-page size has been temporarily restored for one reason—the demand of several large advertisers for greater space from time to time than the small page will allow.

It is believed that the convenient page-size will be restored at a later date. This will be conditional upon the willingness of a number of other suburban papers to conform, so that larger advertisers may find it worth their while to design special copy for the magazine size. Under the new form there will be no change in the general plan of contents.

Looking Forward

Nineteen thirty-two may be a crucial year in the history of the United States.

For more than two years we have endured one of the most severe and prolonged general depressions of all time—in company with the other great nations of the world. There is no magic remedy for curing economic ills—how soon our problems will be solved, largely, is up to us, as individuals, and as members of a complicated society.

Nineteen thirty-two is a "Presidential year." Ordinarily, such an election and the political questions it raises would loom large on the horizon. But this is not an ordinary period, and local political issues—so far as they attach themselves to men and parties—have become, in the public mind, a very small thing when contrasted with economic and social issues. People who are wondering how to find jobs are not interested in partisan platforms nor in political bickerings.

The greatest danger of a depression is that we may lose our heads—that a sort of mob hysteria may take the place of reason. We may try to overcome economic law with panaceas. Already many such efforts are being proposed—the new Congress, before it has completed its session, will be swamped with suggestions for relieving the unemployed with gigantic bond issues; for helping the farmer with governmental subsidies and attempts at price-fixation; for helping the small business at the expense of the large one; for helping the poor and those of moderate means by overtaxing the wealthy.

While such proposals may be made in good faith, most of them are based on misconceptions.

Prosperity will return as the result of stimulated employment, stimulated buying, stimulated trade, commerce and building. We cannot produce that by frightening the capital we need. We cannot do it through governmental meddling, which inevitably forces retrenchment and inaction on the businesses it touches—and, by example, on the entire business structure. The potential destructive forces of politics cannot be measured.

We cannot create prosperity by heaping additional tax burdens on businesses and individuals already struggling under a tremendous tax bill. Robbing Peter to pay Paul is not sound economics. All taxes must eventually be paid by the public—business must pass all costs onto those who buy its products or services. For the nation to go further into debt, to appropriate additional millions and billions for temporary and unsound relief schemes, is the height of folly.

Our basic industries have shown a commendable spirit in seeking to solve their problems, which, in reality, are the workers' problems and the consumers' problems. Electricity, insurance, oil, gas, railroads, farm organizations—all have shown progressive tendencies. They realize the duty that is upon them to prevent so far as possible the up-and-down swing of the business chart in the future—the booms that are followed by drops, the inflation that precedes deflation. They are working to stabilize employment, to find a means of assuring the good worker his livelihood at all times, to protect the future of workers when they get beyond their point of usefulness. Business can do this better than government. What the dole has done to England, it would do to a greater degree to the United States for we spend money on a more lavish scale for all things. It could plunge us into debt to the point of bankruptcy and crowd business to the edge of ruin with taxes. The dole shatters self-respect—and, in England, it has apparently helped to aggravate unemployment by discouraging industrial expansion.

There are problems, of course, that no nation by itself can hope to solve, problems of international significance. These, too, the public must take an interest in if we are to have officials capable of representing us in the work of world rehabilitation. Disarmament, the stabilization of silver, the encouragement of international trade, a sound tariff policy for all nations—these may seem abstract things, but they have a direct and important effect on the prosperity of every country, every business, every wage-earner and investor.

To repeat, 1932 will be an outstanding year in our history. It will be a year of great problems. All of our national character, aggressiveness and initiative will be needed to solve them. Courage and faith must displace gloom and fear if the mists of 1930 and 1931 are to rise in 1932.

Omens and Portents

There is more than a memory of wet feet in the fact that 1932 has started off with a substantial excess of rain in the first week of its career. To the scientific mind it may mean nothing, but anyone can look for omens and portents.

Suppose, for example, that the rainfall which has generously soaked the Main Line during the week past should continue in fair measure throughout the year, and throughout the country. Well, for one thing, it would help crops, and agriculture is our biggest industry. It would reduce the fire hazard in the forests, and the trees are certainly a prime natural resource. It would fill up the streams and lakes, brighten the woods and fields and thus make vacationing more pleasant, giving greater opportunity for the tired citizen to restore his health for future prosperity.

The depression followed close on the heels of the big drought of 1929, and continued through the drought years of 1930 and 1931. True, last year was about normal locally, but Philadelphia was an exception. If we follow this line of reasoning, tenuous as it may appear, we may assume that an improvement in the average of rainfall may presage other improvements.

A "first night" of interest is next Wednesday when the Main Line Repertory Theatre will produce the dramatization of Joseph C. Lincoln's novel, "Galusha the Magnificent," at Haverford College. As Mr. Lincoln is a resident of Villanova, the performance will be in the nature of a real Main Line affair.

Shreds & Patches

Possibly there may be some persons who are scanning the columns of local newspapers for news of further developments in that banking scheme which was somewhat vaguely presented in full-page advertisements a few weeks ago. There has been nothing in the past writings of the Vagrant which would justify him in believing that his column would be looked to for information on anything so substantial as banks and banking, but he does think that some one owes it to the public to explain that that particular scheme was abortive and contained in its original prospectus the seeds of its own destruction. The opening sentence of the announcement, which was addressed to depositors of the Merion Title and Trust Company, stated that "the orderly liquidation of the assets of your company is vital to their conservation, rather than forced liquidation in present markets." That implied a lack of confidence in the liquidation methods of the State banking authorities. Yet it was impossible for the scheme which was then proposed to proceed without the co-operation of the State banking officials. Naturally, since State banking authorities are only human and subject to ordinary feelings of resentment, the State authorities would not co-operate. That was that. The scheme died a-borning simply because those who framed its appeal to the public did not understand the simple first rudiments of public relations.

Bankers still have everything to learn in the matter of public relations. Any experienced newspaperman, following his own blind instinct, could take them a long way in the direction of better public relations. This was proved by the career of Frank A. Vanderlip, who was a newspaperman first and a banker later. It is impossible for newspapermen and bankers to get together for mutual assistance because they do not speak the same language nor view their fellowmen with the same vision. Their viewpoints are permanently warped by what they habitually handle. The banker handles money—other people's money, to be sure—lending a hard substance to this one and withholding it from that, and on his decisions men prosper or fail. Something of the peculiar qualities of gold enter the banker's heart and mind. The newspaperman handles news which is the somewhat intangible reflection of the good, bad and indifferent of human activities. His reasoning on practical affairs may sometimes be unstable, but his heart and his vision are in accord with the strivings and fears of the average man whom he leads and enlightens. The newspaperman deals in human values; the banker in money values. They just naturally do not get on well together. Yet the newspaperman's knowledge of the humanities would be a greater service to the banker than the banker's skill in money matters could ever be to us vagrant, imprudent newspapermen.

Although much attached to written signatures in the right places and to the printed statements of balance sheets, the bankers have never learned the simple and self-evident truth that rumors spread and flourish in the absence of printed information to the contrary. During the period of the late and disastrous bank rumors the people were often forced to believe the rumors because the bankers refused to state reassuring facts in the news columns which were always freely available to them for that purpose. "The less printed, the better" was the reply of the bankers to the importunities of the newspapermen. The newspapermen knew then that the reverse was the truth and the correctness of their belief has been more than amply demonstrated in the cases of many banks now horribly defunct.

New Type of History in Adams' 'Epic of America'

The impressive vogue of James Truslow Adams' fine book, "The Epic of America," resulting, it is said, in the season's most lucrative publishing venture, not excluding Cather's "Shadows on the Rock" or Buck's "Good Earth," is no mean augury of the fine compensations being drawn from the hydra-headed distress which everywhere abounds. The book is available at the Community Library. Unquestionably, such a treatise is or should be a prime requisite of those who agree that the insistent problems of the generation must be thought out to a finish, not muddled through, nor cured by sonorous phrases.

The plain facts of the American case have been too frequently befogged by chauvin chatter and interpretations which have impaired the national intelligence in the grievous manner which makes current social and political utilities altogether explicable. There is glaring need to go back to the beginning, to study diligently the why and wherefore of each step which was taken and to devoutly determine, as best we can, the essentials of that grandiose dream which should encompass the destiny of a lovely land, supremely endowed by a beneficent Omnipotence to well serve all the sound hopes and aspirations of the creature He elected to a share in its boundless tracts and opportunities.

The patriotism of Adams is exalted and sincere and there is no part nor place in his serious study for that shabby ilk of pseudo-historians who ply their pen for the gain which comes in destroying the popular idols and highlights of American tradition. Nevertheless, he faces facts as a carefully ascertained record actually reveals them to be. He sees, for instance, in the Revolutionary struggle, not a magnificent and unanimous outcry for liberty from all the people, but rather a superb and successful endeavor carried on by a mere contingent, harassed as ruthlessly by the home folks as by the foreign foe, and he is flatfooted in his declaration that the great cause was only saved from ignominious defeat by the mighty character of Washington and the generous aid afforded by the French.

None of this, of course, is new, as even the sketchy school histories (culled clean of the dynamite which disturbs Parents' Associations) make note of the meager militia of 3000 which was all the Colonies possessed and in no battle did our immortal general have more than 18,000 men. And what terrible vicissitudes beset him at every turn, no money, no rations, no equipment, with desertions at times far exceeding enlistments, the whole heroic sacrifice finding its epic in the blood-stained snow-tracks of Valley Forge as ton in "The Ruling Voice," coming to Narberth next Wednesday. All about a milk war, with machine guns and kidnappings. Very exciting. With the versatile Walter Huston there appear Loretta Young, David Manners and Doris Kenyon.

"Local Boy Makes Good" is just what its title implies. It is coming to the borough playhouse next Friday and Saturday, with Joe E. Brown playing the role of the local boy who makes good. Rather amusing comedy.

At this Saturday's matinee, the Narberth Theatre offers as an extra feature "Around the World by Graf Zeppelin."

That sparkling comedy, "Flying High," brings Charlotte Greenwood and Bert Lahr to the Egyptian this week-end. Next Monday will find Will Rogers charming and amusing as ever in "Ambassador Bill."

unshod men huddled together in the cold winds to keep alight the torch which heralded their claim to be free among the nations of the earth.

Meanwhile, more than a hundred thousand of their erstwhile fellow-countrymen, the greatest heira of its kind in all history, fled the land, violently opposed to the separation from England, and had taken with them a huge part of the Colonists' wherewithal of war, our own Philadelphia affording, in its Toryism, the sorriest spectacle of all.

This was the kind of start we had, hard won and highly prized, but only the achievement of that lesser part of the embryo nation which dared to die, and under Adams' argus guidance we explore every foot of the further journey, sometimes contemplating what seems to be the complete shattering of the beautiful dream, and even in our own day certainly there is ample evidence that the high hand of Alexander Hamilton, as opposed to the warm and human solicitude acquired from the French philosophers by Thomas Jefferson, is having the full innings which those who went before us persistently denied it and which many of us feel ought to be permanently denied if the average man is to approach that equality and freedom which are claimed for him as a consequence of his natural rights and eternal justice.

Adams is nothing short of profound as he approaches the crucial period which followed the peace of 1783 and he skillfully delineates how, out of that extraordinary chaos, at grips with the finest legislative minds this country has ever produced, came the idealism and rule of procedure which have maintained these United States ever since in their original structure, an amazing record in the history of governments, and particularly noteworthy when due consideration is given to the barriers created by the influences of the frontier, Puritanism and other provincialisms which checked culture and spiritual maturity; and, too often, dragged the conduct of public affairs down to a viciously circumscribed basis, withering, to a lamentable degree, the fine, wholesome growth which the body politic owed to the blessed soil from which it sprung.

If we see evidence of the same cumbersome heritage in the legislative assemblies of our own times, we should not be unmindful of the hard circumstances which begot it all as the years went on and how indubitably it must pass into oblivion as a more virile citizenship regains that which has been so sadly lost.

There are all kinds of knowledge which you never get at college, sang Dan Daly long ago, and with respect to American history we rather think the boast is well founded, for it is a rare company which can hold forth long on the background of this lustrous America, and yet there is no more enticing subject to while away the long winter evenings nor none which will better equip our voters to act courageously and intelligently in their country's behalf.

Read this "Epic of America" and thoroughly enjoy a volume which flashes with a brilliance born of a great erudition, immensely interesting and sprightly from first page to last, a splendid mentor for the battle of the century which will occur in 1932.

So this is winter!

How is your "sales resistance" to the lure of the seed catalog?

Anything that has been introduced during the last five years is called "new" in the seed catalog.

Last September we mentioned in the column marigold Guinea Gold. Here is a new annual that is really good and worthy of a place in any garden. A rich golden color, gracefully semi-double and without the heavy African marigold odor.

Seedsmen are waking up to the amateur's demand for smaller and better zinnias for cutting. The pom-poms, liliputs and pumillas are being featured.

As an edging plant the Mexican zinnia is hard to beat; it comes in a mixture of yellow and orange colors, is really dwarf and makes a most excellent border.

Annual larkspurs are featured. Miss California is really an improvement as is Carmine King. The new "spires" are also good in blue shades.

Annual scabiosa is a fine annual. The new salmon-pink variety loveliness is just the color we want.

Nasturtium Golden Glean is claimed to be almost double and maybe fragrant—don't bet very much on the fragrance. They don't tell us it is aphid-proof, so we won't try the new "nasty urchin."

If you are planning artistic alyssum borders use one part of Lilac Queen with four parts of Little Gem. The lilac is a little taller and takes the dead flatness from the ribbon. The lilac shade is more pronounced in cooler weather when the sun does not bleach it.

If you like Shirley Poppies try the new double pink—Sweet Briar.

Early March will be time to start seeds indoors in the window or sun porch. Four-inch earthen seed pans are the most convenient devices for sowing seeds, especially very small and fine seeds.

For more and better annuals and perennials we will require more and better cold frames. In these days of "readjustment" we can keep down the cost of gardening and at the same time add to the pleasure of it by growing more of our perennials from seed. The cold frames should be ready by early April. Any enterprising lumber dealer can furnish all the materials necessary.

Easter is early this year, March 27.

Gardeners who are planning new gardens on paper will do well to remember the three rules. Preserve the open lawn and keep the planting to the edges. Avoid straight lines wherever possible; nature does not plant in straight lines. Plant in groups or masses, not single spots and not rows of soldiers; a mass of one color is effective—one plant here and there becomes lost.

MRS. ANNA E. LATCH

Funeral services were held for Mrs. Anna E. Latch at her late residence, Flat Rock and Hageysford Road, Penn Valley, on Tuesday afternoon. The interment was at the Lutheran Cemetery in Ardmore.

Mrs. Latch, who was the widow of Winfield Latch, died on New Year's Day after a two weeks' illness. She is survived by five daughters and three sons.

Lower Merion Downs Collingdale 18 to 10

Maroon Led 16-3 at Half-time in Unimpressive Game on Tuesday.

HAVERFORD TONIGHT

Lower Merion's senior high basketball team won its fourth victory of the current season Tuesday afternoon against Collingdale High School, 18 to 10. This victory was not impressive at all, but the lads wearing the Maroon colors were up against a well-drilled team which worked great defensively all through the game.

Ray Stanley and Sonny Grace made their shots count during the first two quarters and between them converted twelve points of the team's sixteen at half-time. Jack Hinchey, sophomore guard, started his first game for Anderson and turned in a good game.

The local team had some tough luck in their second half shooting but as a whole the team's eye seems improved. Williams and Hinchey held their opposing forwards to two field goals. They each scored one and center Talley contributed one on a spot from the foul area.

The team meets Haverford High in a crucial league affair this Friday night in the Junior High building at 8:15. Score and line-up:

Lower Merion	Collingdale
Grace, forward	Robershaw
Stanley, forward	Riley
Talley, center	Meell
Williams, guard	Tomlin
Hinchey, guard	Scotti

Score by halves: 16-3, 10-7.

Field goals—Grace, 2; Stanley, 2; Talley, Williams, Hinchey, Riley, Meell, Tomlin, Scotti. Foul goals—Grace, 2; Scotti, 2.

Referee—Rumsey. Time of quarters 15 mins.

Hospital Patients' Christmas Brightened by Committee

Patients in the Bryn Mawr Hospital and their families enjoyed a happy Christmas due to the work of the Social Service Committee of the hospital. Not only patients in the hospital wards but their families as well, who had to celebrate Christmas in their own homes, sometimes without a father or mother who were too ill to leave the hospital, were taken care of.

Each ward patient was given a gift and toys were distributed generously in the children's ward. In addition delicious baskets were prepared and delivered by the committee. These baskets contained the best of everything for the growing family, not just for the Christmas Day meal but for several days to follow. In each box were a sewing box for the mother and stockings and gifts for the children.

The committee is deeply grateful to its many kind friends who contributed so generously and made it possible to give a Happy Christmas to families who are dependent upon its work through no fault of their own.

The thanks of the committee are also extended to other agencies in the neighborhood whose interested co-operation helped in the work.

How to Get Tibbett Photos

Postcards with which to secure autographed photos of Lawrence Tibbett, operatic, cinema and radio star, may be had at Roy Kessinger's Sunshine Service Station, Montgomery Pike and Narberth Avenue. The baritone commenced weekly broadcasts for Firestone last Monday night. Kessinger is the Narberth Firestone dealer.

'Time Out'

By TOMMY MACKLIN

Notice is hereby given to the Maroon ensemble that Catholic High easily defeated Southern High Tuesday afternoon, 28 to 19. The Anderson men meet Catholic High next Tuesday night on the Junior High floor.

Coaches Cornog and Mentzer paid Lower Merion a visit Tuesday afternoon with some of the members of the Haverford team, and watched Bill Anderson's boys exhibit exactly nothing to win a game against Collingdale.

They probably feel satisfied they can win tonight, and we almost concur in their belief. The only trouble they will have is the Lower Merion team.

While the depression is on, Lower Merion Junior High School goes ahead ignorant of any depressing effects. The basketball team journeys to Lancaster's West Junior High tonight accompanied by the school band and some rooters. The rest of the younger boys and girls will remain at home to see the big team teach Haverford that victory belongs to the mighty, those with the bulldog grip and the lion heart.

With eight games being played by the teams in the Main Line League and four in the church league this week, not to mention countless high school games, the Main Line is doing its share for the court game. Narberth got revenge in a small way Tuesday night when the basketball team defeated Paoli in a league affair at the Borough. Narberth hasn't forgotten about the baseball season.

There are many interesting things about the court game that pass by without gaining much widespread mention. There are so many teams playing basketball that little attention is paid to the game outside of our own back yard. There are more people playing basketball than any other sport in the world.

Did you know that the game was first played with seven men on a side? That they then played it with eight men and then later nine men to a side? Three penalties used to constitute a point? That a field goal used to count three points? That one man used to do all the foul shooting for a side? A Fordham College player shot twenty-eight in one game? That Bill Anderson playing for Lafayette against Penn shot 19 of his team's 22 points one night? That the same Bill captained and later coached the team at Lafayette? That a protege and former player of the Lower Merion team's coach is present leading forward at Lafayette? That his name is Stanley Thomas and lives in Narberth? That L. B. Fowler's former basketball coach at Mississippi A. & M. College is present head football and basketball coach at Indiana University? That Pennsylvania only lost three league games from 1918 to 1922, winning the championship four straight years?

And lots of other things. Time out for breath. Now Wyce and Herby will have to get busy.

Twenty-two thousand people crowded into the Cleveland Auditorium one night in 1924 to see a professional basketball game. Sounds like a Radnor-Lower Merion football game.

Reuben Bowen, Lower Merion Senior High School student, received a nice writeup in a Philadelphia paper Tuesday. Reuben is an exceptional performer as a magician. This writer had the pleasure of presenting him and his work to large audiences last summer. He's a corner in the indoor sport.

Merion Man Retires from Pennsy After Half Century

Herbert A. Jaggard, of Merion, secretary of the Association of Transportation Officers of the Pennsylvania Railroad, retired on Monday from active duty under the company's pension regulations. He has been an outstanding figure in the operating department of the railroad for nearly half a century.

After graduating from Yale in 1886, he attended the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute where in 1889 he received the degree of civil engineer. He then started on his long railroad career as a rodman on the construction corps working out of his home town, Altoona, Pa., the city of his birth.

Mr. Jaggard advanced to assistant track supervisor at Downingtown in 1893. He was made track supervisor on the Trenton cut-off in 1897, and in the summer of 1901 was assigned to the transportation department in Broad Street Station. In 1903 he was appointed general agent at Pittsburgh and on April 1, 1907, became division superintendent of the Northern Central Railway at Elmira, N. Y.

During the eighth session of the International Railway Congress at Berne, Switzerland, Mr. Jaggard was one of the reporters for America, and a delegate of the Pennsylvania Railroad. He was appointed secretary of the Association of Transportation Officers of the Pennsylvania Railroad on January 16, 1924.

Mr. Jaggard is a member of the Union League of Philadelphia.

Guardians of the Night

A LAMP on the switch-board flashed—a call was in the making.

"I'm all alone and it's getting awfully hot!" a small frightened voice complained to the Night Operator when she plugged in the cord.

Immediately she sensed trouble. "Don't you worry," she reassured the child. "Somebody's coming!" and quickly she connected another line to police headquarters.

Within a few minutes a police car was at the child's home. It was none too soon. A valve on the furnace had jammed, the rescuers discovered, and the boiler was perilously near exploding.

In the Theater

The Hedgerow Theatre in Rose Valley will present the latest addition to its repertory for the second time this year when Lennox Robinson's "The Whiteheaded Boy" is produced on Saturday night of next week. "The Whiteheaded Boy" was one of the most startling successes of the Abbey Theatre in Dublin when it began to attract international attention several years ago. The cast includes Al McGranary, Rose Cullen, Herbert Walton, Catherine Corcoran and Smith Dowless. On Friday night of next week the Hedgerow Theatre will play Shaw's revolutionary comedy, "Arms and the Man." Thursday evening Gaiety's sensitive and moving drama, "Like Falling Leaves," will be produced with Hancey Castle, Smith Dowless, Miriam Phillips, William Price and Alfred Rowe in the leading roles.

Tonight at the theatre in Rose Valley will see the opening of the "Whiteheaded Boy" and tomorrow night Shaw's satirical melodrama "The Devil's Disciple" will be given after a long absence from the repertory.

The one and only Fred Stone will commence a two weeks' engagement at the New Forrest Theatre Monday evening in the most opulent, amusing and tuncful musical comedy of his career, entitled "Smiling Faces."

For the occasion, Mr. Stone portrays one Montmet Spleen, a motion picture director with ideas of his own. There is much merry sallying at the methods of Hollywood, and Mr. Stone has a new bagful of his typical tricks and stunts. These are as surprising as ever, and Mr. Stone is, if anything, nimble and more effective in his acrobatic activities than at any time in his career.

Chief in Mr. Stone's support is his lovely and talented daughter, Paula Stone, who seems well headed on the road to stardom.

Only two weeks remain for local playgoers to see Ethel Barrymore as Lady Teazle in Sheridan's satirical comedy, "The School for Scandal," at the Chestnut Street Opera House.

Not only is the star's tour this year one of the most remarkable in recent theatrical history but is even more noteworthy because of its significance for her engagements everywhere this season in the Sheridan classic are being hailed as one of the outstanding dramatic events of this generation and something that everyone interested in the theatre should see.

The Professional Players will present for their fifth play of their third subscription season what was acclaimed in New York last season as one of the most distinctive hits of the year, Charles Hopkins' production of "Mrs. Moonlight," by Benn W. Levy, the noted English playwright, which ran for 316 performances in New York and the talk of Boston and Chicago. Co-starring Edith Barrett and Sir Guy Standing, with the balance of the original cast, this outstanding attraction will be offered at the Chestnut Street Opera House January 25.

The story of this truly charming and beautifully imaginative play revolves around a happily married young girl of the 1880's who is given the opportunity of having one wish come true through the gift of a magic necklace from her devoted Scotch servant. Her wish, which is granted, is that she may always look young and beautiful and thus retain her husband's great love. With the passage of the years, which leave her untouched outwardly, she finds that an increasing barrier is springing up between her and her aging husband, and that her gift of the gods has made her his slave instead of remaining a free woman. Around this intriguing situation and ingratiating theme, the author has skillfully created an absorbing, highly sentimental play of widespread appeal.

Beginning January 18, the attraction at the Garrick Theatre will be "Wild Waves," a new comedy by William Manley. "Wild Waves" has been directed by Worthington C. Miner, who recently staged "Five Star Final" and "Remmion in Vienna" with such distinction.

"Wild Waves" is based on the mad antics which take place in broadcasting studios every day of the week. Sundays included. Mr. Manley, the author of "Wild Waves," is well qualified to write such a comedy, since he has been one of our most prolific authors of radio sketches.

La Argentina will give her only concert in Philadelphia on Wednesday afternoon, January 13, at the Academy of Music, for the same worthy cause for which she danced last season, the Bryn Mawr Summer School, under the auspices of the Professional Players.

Five new dances are promised by this glamorous apostle of the Spanish dance, and five old ones, the latter embellished in some cases by new costumes, in others by new interpretations, and in all cases renewed and reinvigorated by that freshness and spontaneity which are such outstanding characteristics of the work of this superb artist.

Described as a colorful drama of the tropics, "Adam Had Two Sons," from the pen of the well-known John McDermott, will be launched for the first time on any stage at the Garrick Theatre Monday evening. "Adam Had Two Sons" is booked at the Garrick Theatre for only one week and at the conclusion of its local engagement will be brought to Broadway by its premiere there at the Alvin Theatre.

The debut of Arons and Freedley as producers of legitimate drama marks also the much-looked-for debut of Raquel Torres, famous movie star, on the legitimate stage.

When a man gets up in the world there is always somebody ready with a shovel to dig up some buried incident in his past.

Why Buy a New Car?

We admit that the new cars coming out in 1932 are real revelations and have the go ahead and shoulders above everything before. However, if you happen to be one of those persons (and there were a lot of us) that were affected by the abnormal conditions in 1931, it will pay you to give the old car the best possible attention and drive it a while longer.

Now R. Roy Kessinger at Sunshine Service, Montgomery pike at Narberth Avenue, is making a specialty of a thorough and complete lubrication job for $1 on all cars.

Automotive engineers agree that 85% of auto troubles are caused from lack of correct lubrication. Come in and be convinced that Sunshine Service can save you this trouble!

Cars called for and delivered without charge.

Grace, Lower Merion, Is Second in League Scoring

From available sources it seems that McCabon, of Haverford High, is the leading scorer in the suburbs this far with Grace, of Lower Merion, trailing him by three points. McCabon has thirty points in four games.

While "high scorer" is sometimes misleading as to the real worth of a player to his team, still it is interesting to note the boys who play a great team game and still can get free to make their own score mount up. After all, it is the points that win the games, and a high-scoring man is a valuable asset to any team.

The leading scorers along the Main Line thus far are: McCabon, Haverford High, 30; Grace, Lower Merion, 27; Stanley, Lower Merion, 23; Hocking, Friends' Central, 21; Gray, Haverford High, 17; Badger, Radnor, 16; Fairbanks, Haverford High, 16; O'Dorisio, Radnor, 16; Solenne, Radnor, 16; Groff, Berwyn, 14; Bradford, Episcopal, 13; Williams, Lower Merion, 12.

Federation's Social Service Dept. to Elect on Tuesday

The Social Service Department of the Main Line Federation of Churches will hold its annual meeting for election of officers and to report on the work of the past year next Tuesday evening, at 8 P. M., at the Bryn Mawr Presbyterian Church.

There will be novel and interesting reports from committees, and the executive secretary will have a challenging account of the year's accomplishments. The year 1931 has brought an enormous responsibility to this organization in helping the unemployed, and those who have suffered from the serious financial depression.

The reports will be interesting to the residents of Haverford Township this year, particularly inasmuch as the Federation of Churches is the recipient of funds of the United Campaign and is doing an unusually large amount of work in the Township this year.

A cordial invitation is extended to all members of the community to come to hear this account of the year's work. There will be brief addresses by Edwin W. Ehmman, chairman of the Main Line Emergency Committee; Rev. Andrew Mutch, of the Bryn Mawr Presbyterian Church, and Rev. Louis W. Pitt, of the St. Mary's Church, Ardmore. William M. Kieffer, of Llanerch, will preside.

Creation of Forest Parks Opportunity for Pennsylvania to Lead in Beauty

By JOHN W. HERRING, Secretary Southeastern Pennsylvania Parks Association.

Not "every prospect pleases" in this time of depression, which is the more reason for our land to take pleasure in the out-of-doors. Visitors to the great and growing State park systems in the United States cannot but feel that in these beautiful stretches which are being preserved for all times there is a kind of sanctuary to which the nation may go for health and peace in good times and bad.

Many States have looked to Pennsylvania for an example of magnificent achievements in forestry. But Pennsylvania is returning the compliment by looking to other States for great examples of State park development. Some of the most impressively beautiful of the State park systems lie along the Blue Ridge and its sister ranges of the Catskills on the North and the Great Smokies on the South. We, of southeastern Pennsylvania, may feel that these great developments actual and prospective, are gifts to our part of America. We live on the Piedmont Plateau, that beautiful and fertile thousand-mile strip which shoulders gently down from the Blue Ridge or the Alleghenies to the Atlantic coastal plain.

But, alas, we are behind hand in conserving the park possibilities of this great chain of natural beauty. New York and New Jersey have taken forward strides, Virginia is the site of the Shenandoah National Park, and North Carolina and Tennessee have combined in the beginnings of a great park system in the Southern Blue Ridge and the Great Smokies. Our foresters have done a splendid work in the development of State forests but the park work is but begun in our Pennsylvania sector of the chain.

The traveler from East to West will find that the high points of scenic loveliness are at the beginning and the end of his journey. He does well to linger in the skyland of the Blue Ridge, the Shenandoah or the Great Smokies for he will find nothing as impressive until he comes to the Continental Divide and the desert ranges and the Sierras beyond. No dweller in the East should be satisfied until he has made the Eastern mountain country his own.

The traveler finds the first great park developments in Shenandoah National Park nearly due west of Washington, D. C. Approaching either by the Blue Ridge roads from Gettysburg southeasterly through the Shenandoah Valley, honeycombed by a magic underworld of caverns, or westwards from Washington by the Lee Highway, one comes to the park either from the Massanutten Valley on the west in which lie the Caverns of Luray, or from the Piedmont Plateau on the East, rising by hairpin turns to the pass at Panorama, three thousand feet in height and looking back over a far blue vista. A sky land highway is already in process of construction which will carry the traveler ultimately from the northern boundary of the park at Front Royal along a marvelous aerial trail past the shoulder of Hawksbill Mountain, the summit of which is over 4000 feet, through a passage tunneled in the solid granite, and at last upon the pass that marks the southern limit of the park between Staunton and Charlottesville. Thence the traveler may continue on south in the westwards lee of the Ridge through Lexington and past Natural Bridge and to the Southern Blue Ridge and the Great Smokies. Or he may descend the highway like a ladder into the chaotic scenery of the Piedmont among the Raggedy hills, one of the loveliest cups in the East, or he may turn back up the Shenandoah Valley, or still farther west by the new Sky Land route from White Sulphur Springs north to the Pennsylvania line through West Virginia.

One cannot visualize the completed aerial trail in the Virginia Blue Ridge without querying "Why not the Pennsylvania Blue Ridge also? Why not a skyland route from the Delaware Water Gap to Harrisburg and Gettysburg, with a spur through the Reading hill country to Valley Forge?" Such a route would be within a short pleasure trip of New York as well as Philadelphia. Fifteen or twenty million people would be within easy range.

The Blue Ridge loses itself soon beyond the Delaware, to reappear in the northern Jersey hills and the Catskills. As we look to the Catskills we find New York State also leading us in mountain parks. Not so well known to Pennsylvanians perhaps as the Shenandoah Valley and its bordering ranges, to our southwest, the Catskill forest and park development is worthy a long trip. Cut by the giant ribbon of America's most stately river the Catskills reach away from the middle Hudson a craggy sweep of granite hills and mountains. Under the State park and forest program, great areas have been claimed for the permanent playground of the State. One who has never visited the Catskills has a rare and pleasing surprise in store. With its lakes and precipitous peaks, it is a veritable little Switzerland. By contrast with the long blue sweep of the Pennsylvania ranges, the Catskills are a sharp, tumbling sea.

To the South in the Blue Ridge and the Great Smokies of North Carolina and Tennessee, the traveler comes to one of the most recent but the most remarkable of park developments. North Carolina in addition to its great progress in roads and other departments has embarked upon a wonderful park program, inspired by the unsurpassed beauty of its mountain scenery. In the great four-State area where North Carolina, Virginia, Tennessee and Georgia share in the splendid southern terminus of the Blue Ridge and in the Great Smokies, is not only the highest peak east of the Rockies, but many other peaks of rivaling altitude. In addition to the signal achievements of North Carolina in the famous Asheville region, she has joined with Tennessee to make possible the Great Smokies National Park, so newly opened that but a small fragment of our people have visited it. Thus the traveler approaching, let us say from Knoxville, Tennessee, is altogether amazed at the discovery. The nation has accepted from the States of Tennessee and North Carolina the care of nearly 160,000 acres of land. As one winds up grade beside the tumbling way of "Little River" for more than thirty miles of ascent by good road and then takes to the rough trail for miles more, he begins to realize that these are "real" mountains. And when his car has taken him as far as the road permits and he sees lifting their heads, still far up and beyond in the "smoky" distance, the Great Smoky kings of the range, he says to himself, "Why haven't I known of this before?" Wild beyond belief, so completely have these mountains been closed to the public; cascading with mountain runs and boiling streams, and stretching away in their upper vistas in grey mountainous tumult, the Great Smokies are indeed fit to take rank as among the most kingly of our national parks.

Wynnewood Girl to Play Leading Juvenile Role

Crystal Herne. After playing in this in a "walk on" role and two understudy parts through the summer of 1928, Miss Payne went to Utica, N. Y., where she played in stock through the fall. Coming home for the Christmas holidays, she found her parents determined to put an end to her stage career, and she was shortly after packed off to Europe to forget the lures of the footlights.

Since then she has studied costume design at the School of Industrial Art and again taken to the stage, this time as an amateur, with the Main Line Repertory Theatre. In the performance next Wednesday she will play the part of Lullie Hallett.

Miss Payne attended the Friends' Select School.

The dramatizer of Mr. Lincoln's novel, Alexander DuBin, is head of the Historical Publication Society of Philadelphia and New York. He was the publisher of the "City of Firsts," by George Morgan, a history of Philadelphia which is widely used as a reference book in schools, libraries and historical societies. His firm also published various genealogical works, "Old Philadelphia Families" and "Old New York Families." Mr. DuBin has been interested in the theatre for years, writes and lectures now and then and has in contemplation the dramatization of novels by E. Phillips Oppenheim and Ford Maddox Ford.

Herman D. Levinson, who is directing "The Beloved Meddler," of which he is co-author, has been associated with dramas for more than a score of years as playwright, lecturer and director. Some of his work in Philadelphia has been with the Stagecrafters, Balabazoo and the William Penn High School Alumni. In writing Mr. Levinson generally uses the pen name

"Lee Vinson."

No life is without some comfort, if nothing more than that of rubbing the place that itches.
